

Accredited Third-Party Certification Program: Public Registry of Accredited Third-Party Certification Bodies

The Accredited Third-Party Certification Program is a voluntary program in which FDA recognizes “accreditation bodies” that will have the responsibility of accrediting third-party “certification bodies.” The certification bodies will conduct food safety audits and issue certifications of foreign food facilities. For a list of third-party certification bodies that have been accredited under the program, please visit the FDA Data Dashboard.

Access the Data Dashboard (<https://datadashboard.fda.gov/ora/fd/tpp.htm>)

Was this helpful?

Yes

No